

MR. KIRK WAKES THEM UP.

GLOVE FIGHTS FORBIDDEN.

BE WANTS TO COUNT THE CITY'S ELECTORAL VOTE AND GET IT OVER.

Objection by the Republicans Alleges—The Lawmakers to Advise the Board Today—What They May Do, No Change in the Vote.

The big bumptious, which Anderson White uses as a game come down with a whack promptly at 10 A. M. yesterday, to call the visitors to order to prove I with the county canvass. Paddy Burns was a trifle later with his big bundle of Supervisors' returns and Belmont County Clerk Beale, a trifle later with the County Clerk's duplicates.

The lawyers present watching the entrance for the National Democratic Committee were Mr. Aaron J. Vanderpool, Mr. Franklin Bartlett, Mr. Charles P. Miller, and Mr. Francis M. Smith. For the Tammany Committee Mr. J. M. Bowen appeared. The Republican interests were cared for by George Bliss, Robert Sewell, and John E. Brodsky.

The Supervisors began with the Ninth Assembly district and got through the Fourteenth. Supervisor Kirk rushed the Ninth through in two hours, the quickest time yet; but the Thirty-first election district was missing, the inspectors having returned to its sheet instead. Apparent totals, Blaine 1,882; Cleveland, 5,276; Supervisor Bodman handled the Tenth district. Apparent totals, Blaine 4,177; Cleveland, 5,223. Supervisor O'Connor had the Eleventh. A citizen residing somewhere between Madison and Sixth avenues, Thirty-second and Thirty-fourth streets, was found to have voted for George Washington for President and another for Thomas Jefferson. He was asked if he had voted for the former. "I did," he said. "Jimmy can do gang," and boasted that "de gang wot wee play wot will stand de gang wot you play." The crowd is indigenous to the Frankfort street.

There is not an unscrupulous and dangerous collection of young louts anywhere than the one who have gathered in the Frankfort street between Nassau and the bridge, its favorite playing place, and the owner of Nassau is compelled to leave it.

"Jimmy can do gang," and boasted that "de gang wot wee play wot will stand de gang wot you play." The crowd is indigenous to the Frankfort street.

Inspector Thompson and Capt. Williams had an hour's consultation with Justice Patterson over the law in the case. Sullivan was not at the meeting, but he was there, perched on his chair, his hands clasped behind his head, his chin resting on his hand, his eyes looking at the floor. He was not in the room when the discussion began, but he was there when it ended.

He was not in the room when the discussion began, but he was there when it ended.

When the Board got to the Twelfth Assembly district Supervisor Kirk again voted out of the remaining districts first and let the others vote go over till that was done. He said it wanted to get the electoral vote counted in time for the convention.

Supervisor O'Connor, Kirk observed, thought he still had the return until he had counted all the Board, but he was wrong. He said it must be fully canvassed before another seat was broken.
